Due diligence processes

We are committed to sustainability in all our operations. As part of managing our supply chain, we monitor modern slavery and human trafficking risks based upon the industry in which we operate, and the geographic locations in which we conduct business and/or obtain materials necessary to provide products to our customers. We systematically manage risks in our global supply chain through our due diligence practices. Suppliers' compliance with regulations and requirements are monitored through assessment questionnaires, undertaking risk-based sustainability audits (involving matters such as human rights and labour, the environment, occupational health and safety, ethics, and management systems) of their operations and facilities, ensuring that necessary corrective actions are agreed with the supplier and monitoring the implementation of actions. In 2024, Orion continued to apply its human rights due diligence practices with risk-based approach.

Access to remedy and grievance mechanisms

We encourage employees and other stakeholders to report any concerns regarding modern slavery and human trafficking, as well as any other suspected misconduct or violation of our policies. We take any such reports seriously, investigate and take appropriate, case-specific measures to stop behaviour and activity violating our policies. Non-compliance with our policies may lead to employment dismissal or termination of our relationship with third parties. Orion was not made aware of any human rights violations in its own operations through the Orion Group's whistleblowing channel in 2024.
